News and the Jews

The week in review

No Place Is Safe

Tuesday, Arab gunmen shot at an IDF ambulance near N'vei Dekalim. No one was hurt, but the ambulance was damaged. Other Incidents included an Arab firebomb hurled at a bus near Chomesh in the Shomron and shootings at IDF soldiers in N'vei Dekalim and southern Gaza.

Double Attacks In Kenya

Israeli targets and citizens were targeted in a concerted two-pronged terror offensive Thursday, in and over the southeast Kenyan seaside resort city of Mombasa.

In the first incident, terrorists fired shoulder-launched missiles at Arkia Airlines flight #582 on its way from Mombasa to Israel, with over 260 passengers and crew on board. The missiles missed the plane, which had just taken off, and all passengers aboard were unhurt.

Netanyahu explained the gravity of what he called this "escalation." "Skyjacking terrorism first began against Israeli targets abroad by Arafat and Fatah in the late 1960's, and it very quickly became an international plague. We face exactly the same situation now. The terrorism of firing missiles against civilian airlines is now beginning against Israeli planes, but it can easily spread to other areas..."

Election Day Terror

In Beit She'an Thursday, two terrorists opened fire in three different locations in and around the Likud Party headquarters, killing five Jews and wounding some 30, including ten seriously. Almost all the victims were hit in Likud Party headquarters as elections for the party's leader were being held. Beit She'an is situated in the northern Jordan Valley, 15 miles south of the Kinneret Sea.

The Arab murderers, one of whom was reportedly wearing an explosives vest designed for a suicide attack, were killed when a heroic young man - Border Guard policeman Eran David, 28 - returned precise fire. "He was amazingly courageous," an eyewitness said. "He stood openly to face the terrorists, and fired single shots - not a burst of fire - and picked them off one by one."

Among the wounded are three sons of MK and ex-Foreign Minister David Levy, including Shimon, 40, in serious condition.

PEOPLE of the BOOK

Why Should I Become Involved? Part II

(b) To a large extent, this struggle is taking place in the public media of the Western countries and among their opinion-makers. These media portray the Arabs as an oppressed people, peacefully seeking to regain what is rightfully theirs. Lies and falsifications are repeated so frequently that they become accepted as immutable truths. And this background supports the Arabs when they sit down at the negotiating table.

This is where people in the Diaspora can make a difference - by working to set the record straight. Most cases do not call for much convincing. When a terrorist kills a mother and a child, is it difficult to make people understand that an outrage has occurred? When an Arab government ignores its own commitments, shouldn't a newspaper carry the story? Each of us can do his bit to correct Israel's image in the community and country in which he lives.

Based on talks of the Rebbe Concerning the Integrity of the Land of Israel.

STUFF you should know

Our Egyptian "Friends"

The 25th anniversary of the late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit to Israel, which led to the signing of a hotly-contested peace treaty with Egypt and Israel's total withdrawal from the Sinai, came and went last week - and the resulting peace treaty seems as lifeless as ever. Over the past several days, at least three Egyptian government newspapers have justified and praised last week's terrorist bus attack in Jerusalem in which 11 Jews were murdered.

On Nov. 22, the daily Al-Akhbar published a column whose title said it all: "The Jerusalem Operation: The Only Response to Israeli Terrorism." The article stated that 11 "Israeli terrorists" were killed in the attack, and continued, "In reaction to all of the inhuman acts of the Zionist entity intended to subdue the Palestinian people, a martyrdom operation took place yesterday in occupied Jerusalem in order to prove conclusively that Israel deludes itself in its belief that its uncontrollable appetite to kill, destroy, and terrorize will bring security and peace... In essence, everybody knows that the resistance is the only way for liberation, and there is no alternative. This weapon, the weapon of legitimate force, is the only weapon that Israel fears. Only the resistance can smash the Israeli arrogance and idiocy of its leaders."

One State Solution

"Jordan is the existing Palestinian state and there mustn't be another... Our generation has no right and what, after all is the span of a single generation--to deprive future generations of the Jewish People's holiest site?"

Israeli PM Ariel Sharon Nov 2, 1994
