The week in review

Court Plays With Jews Lives

Wednesday The Supreme Court ruled that construction work on the new security walkway between Kiryat Arba and Chevron must be put off "until a final ruling is made on the matter." the work began after the ambush massacre of 12 Israeli fighters along that very route almost four weeks ago.

At that point, Meretz MK Mossi Raz turned to the Supreme Court for help, and it in fact ordered the work should be stopped until further notice.

Jews Are Murdered

Two Jews were murdered in the holy city of Chevron Thursday. When terrorist gunfire rang out on Worshippers Path, the route that connects Kiryat Arba and Chevron, near the Ma'arat HaMachpela.

The location of the attack is the same where 12 persons, were gunned down by terrorists, about four weeks ago.

PEOPLE of the BOOK

Camp David Accords Part I

In 1977, one man captured the attention of the entire world, bringing about a change in the paradigm of Israeli-Arab relations. Anwar Sadat decided to visit Israel.

Until that time, Israeli and Arabs had seen each other face to face only on the battlefield, and now they would talk to each other directly without intermediaries. Sadat had courage. Realizing that the path of action that he and his predecessors had been following had not brought him success, he was concerned about his country's future. Something new had to be done. So instead of listening to the worn-out tapes of advice he had received from Egyptian advisors, from other Arab leaders, from Washington and from Moscow, he decided to do something different, something which no one had ever dreamed of. He would go to Israel.

What was his intent? He wanted the return of the territory Egypt had lost in the Sinai; he wanted the time to rebuild his army without the threat of war; and he wanted American financial aid for his country.

Based on talks of the Rebbe Concerning the Integrity of the Land of Israel.

Arabs Cashing In

Several PA residents testified to filing false claims against the IDF for injuries that they profess to have received by IDF soldiers.

One Arab suspect who was wounded by stones thrown at IDF forces by Arab children, was evacuated to a hospital, where he was told by a doctor he'd be provided with a complaint form blaming the IDF, which enabled him to claim compensation from the State of Israel.

"The doctor said that he'd write me a complaint form blaming the army so that I'd receive compensation. I paid the doctor 35 shekels and he gave me the form. I gave this form to 'Foundation for the Wounded'. They told me to say that I'd been injured by gunshots, so I went back to Dr. Zahar and told him what the foundation had said. He offered to change the complaint form."

The suspect said that Dr. Zahar, persuaded him to file the fake complaint by telling him that this has been done many times before, adding he knew many other PA residents who filed similar bogus claims. He emphasized the aim was to get as much money in compensation out of Israel as possible.

STUFF you should know

Family Hour On PA TV

PA TV interviewed a mother, who proudly recounted how she prayed that her son would (become a Shahid) die fighting Israelis. Afterward, she was given time to express her wishes to the Israeli's.

"My son Naji became a Shahid on Mar. 23, at age 20. Before he killed, he said: "Be calm, mother, this is my wish. Pray for me, that I will be a Shahid." She prayed "my children asked for Shahada, their death is for Allah, for our country, for our Jerusalem."

"I have one wish for all Israeli's: They should always have nightmares, night and day, wherever they go, and whatever they do from bombings and attacks. They should dream of how we kill them, and blow them up. They shouldn't be able to travel on buses, or drive tanks, nor even ride a bike. Wherever they turn, the Israelis should see [someone] and say: "Maybe it's a Palestinian."

"Jerusalem is our Jerusalem, and not yours. We are children of Palestine, the Muslim nation, you won't live in comfort: not an Israeli's mother, nor a soldier's grandfather. No Israeli of any kind should live in comfort. We will blow them up, wherever they go. And I, as the mother of two Shahids, if I see an Israeli I will blow up among them."
