News and the Jews

The week in review

Results Of The Ceasefire

In a terrorist attack against the Tarmit Outpost in southern Gaza, Thursday night, 27 grenades were fired at the outpost while gunfire was directed at soldiers.

Terror In Afula

In Afula, a terrorist dressed as an IDF soldier opened fire inside the central bus station just as a busload of passengers was disembarking. He murdered two people before security guards shot and killed him. The wounded, including one in critical condition, were taken to Afula's HaEmek Hospital. Afula is located halfway between Hadera and Tiberias.

Chevron Under Attack

For the second consecutive afternoon, holiday festivities in Chevron were interrupted by terrorist gunfire in the area of the Ma'arat HaMachpela (Cave of the Patriarchs). There were no injuries. Bullets struck a wall near the 'seventh step' of the Machpela.

On Wednesday, two persons were wounded, one seriously, by terrorist gunfire in the same area.

Attack In The Capital

On one of the Jerusalem's main highways, an Arab car overtook that of a young Jewish couple, Pinchas and Mali Cohen of Ramat Shlomo, shot at the two, and sped off towards Ramallah. The attack occurred shortly before midnight on the road leading from Ramot and Ramat Shlomo towards French Hill.

The young mother, pregnant with her second child, was shot in the chest and neck; she was originally reported as seriously wounded, but her condition is now listed as moderate, as is her husband, who was shot in the chest. The couple's baby daughter, in the back seat, was not hurt, although at least eight bullets struck the car.

STUFF you should know

Random Acts Of Terror?

The Palestinian raid of the homes of Elei Sinai at the northwest tip of the Gaza Strip Tuesday night was no random or isolated attack. It was part of a thoroughly planned and organized Palestinian terror onslaught. Five additional points were hit simultaneously from positions manned by the Palestinian Authority's "Preventive Security": Dugit, Neve Dekalim, Netzarim and the military outposts guarding these settlements.

Liron Harpaz, 18, from Elei Sinai and her boyfriend from Lod, Asaf Yitzhaki, 20, were encountered first by the Palestinian raiders and shot dead, after which the terrorists went round storming homes.

Israel has evidence that for ten months Palestinian terrorists have been specifically drilling forcible takeovers of settlements, massacres of their inhabitants and holding Israeli troops at bay until they are overpowered and killed. None expect to come out of these strikes alive.

PEOPLE of the BOOK

What risks can you be willing to take? Part II

To return to the analog: There are many dimensions to the Israeli-Arab conflict. Nevertheless, just as when a person has a heart condition, it is the cardiologist whose opinion is given highest priority, since Israel's fundamental concerns are questions of security, it is the opinions of military men and particularly, those trained in the issues at hand, that must determine the guidelines - and the red lines - for negotiations.

When military experts are asked, they explain that it is absolutely necessary for Israel to maintain possession of the lands taken in the Six-Day War. The reasons for this stance are plainly obvious.

The Golan Heights command control of the entire Galilee, Israel's north. Missiles and artillery placed in the Golan could easily destroy civilian centers and military bases in the Galilee. Moreover, even in our age of hi-tech weaponry, fighting uphill is much more difficult than fighting downhill or fighting on level terrain. Thus, if Syrian troops would attack from the Golan, Israel would be put in a defensive position that would be very challenging to turn around.

SAY WHAT?

"This War Will Continue"

"Our belief is that this war, between us and the Jews, will continue to escalate until we vanquish the Jews and enter Jerusalem as conquerors, [and] enter Jaffa as conquerors."

Sermon at the Sheikh 'Ijlin mosque in Gaza, broadcast on PA television. September 21 2001
