News and the Jews

The week in review

Dead Man Walking

The IDF released a videotape Thursday, showing the staged funeral of a Palestinian in the Jenin refugee camp. The footage was filmed by an IDF unmanned reconnaissance plane on April 28th.

IDF field intelligence chief, Colonel Miri Eisen, told reporters that the film shows someone who is supposedly dead - and on the way to burial - falling off his stretcher and then running away.

According to Eisen, the funeral was "one big show," whose aim was to dupe the United Nations fact-finding team into believing that the events in the camp were worse than they were in reality. She said that the mock funeral was part of Palestinian preparations for the committee's arrival and that the Palestinians had fabricated evidence.

Irrational Fear Of Public Opinion

Why are Jews willing to surrender these territories? They are possessed by fear of gentile reaction, the age-old fear of "what will the non-Jew say." A "golus mentality" has become integrated into their very character; and embedded within them is the belief that a Jew must always cringe and cower before non-Jews, and always, always, take their opinion into account.

The source for this mentality? When a Jew loses his own self-respect, when he no longer knows how a Jew thinks, speaks or acts, he adopts non-Jewish attitudes. When a Jew no longer knows what it means to truly fear G-d, he becomes subservient to the "strange god that is within you." That "strange god" is the antithesis of the true Jewish attitude of submission to G-d's Torah, the Halachah; but rather how the non-Jewish world expects him to act.

This irrational fear of non-Jews and public opinion results in submission to all sorts of pressure — even while one knows that to do so is to act against the best interests of Jews and Eretz Yisroel. Thus the pathetic eagerness to surrender lands vital for security, and thus the hesitancy in carrying out the present operation to its logical, avowed conclusion. All for fear of what the gentile will say, what the gentile will think of us.

Signature Of Terror

GSS investigators reported that Tanzim's head Marwan Barghouti, who was taken into custody on April 15th, has begun cooperating with his interrogators. During questioning, the terrorist leader admitted to involvement in planning and preparing terror attacks that involved the killing and injuring of many of Jews.

During interrogation, Barghouti also made a direct connection between Yasser Arafat and PA funding for Fatah Tanzim activities, including terror attacks. He added that as secretary of the Tanzim, he was responsible for ensuring there was funding for continued operations, using Arafat to approve payments. He confirmed that the smallest sum required Arafat's personal approval. Only after Arafat affixed his signature were the necessary funds transferred to Fatah.

Teenager's Night Out

A 15 Year old teen and four other terrorists were caught wearing extremely powerful explosives, on their way to a major terrorist attack outside Gush Katif, Thursday night.

STUFF you should know

Americans For Transfer

• Rep. Richard Arney (Majority Leader, R.-Tex), spoke with Chris Matthews on MSNBC and said "I am content with Israel keeping all the land it occupies now." When Matthews asked if he means to say that "all the Palestinians who are now in the West Bank should get out of there?" Arney responded, "Yes." He explained that there was plenty of room for the PA population in other Arab countries.

• House Majority Whip, Tom DeLay, suggested earlier this week that Israel should not withdraw from territory it captured in the 1967 war, despite the Bush administration's call for an independent Palestinian state. He also equated Israel's struggle against the Palestinians with the U.S. war on terrorism, and pointedly did not use the phrase "West Bank" but said rather "Judea and Samaria."

Israel's Fight Is Our Fight

"Let every terrorist know, the American people will never abandon freedom, democracy or Israel,... Recent attacks directed against Israelis are attacks against liberty, and all free people must recognize that Israel's fight is our fight."
